

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air a political documentary/ad days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. The fact that one of their own news journalists sees this as a political piece and not a news piece scares me.

They seem to have way too much power to view their corporate interests on the public airways. Either the FCC needs to demand equal time for the Kerry campaign to rebut their opinions or they should be forced to cancel their forced broadcasts.

Please let Sinclair know that they are stewards of tv and that privilage can be taken away from them if they unfairly push their personal agendas on the US viewer.

Thank You,

Jeremy Hawk
